

BIOGRAPHY

Harry D. Raduege Jr.
Lieutenant General, USAF (Ret.)
Chief Executive Officer
Network Centric Operations Industry Consortium

Lieutenant General Harry D. Raduege, Jr. (USAF, Ret) is Chief Executive Officer for the Network Centric Operations Industry Consortium and previously served as a member of the NCOIC Board of Directors and Executive Council Chair Emeritus.

General Raduege currently works as a Partner & Managing Director at RIDGE-LANE Limited Partners and as a Senior Counselor at The Cohen Group.

Until his retirement from Deloitte & Touche LLP in June 2017, he worked as Chairman of the Deloitte Center for Cyber Innovation and as a Senior Advisor and Managing Director for Cyber Risk Services. There, he worked globally with clients across government and industry in reducing risk to their business and mission operations due to cyber-attacks and other unauthorized intrusions.

Previously, Raduege retired after serving 35 years in the U.S. Air Force. He worked in the areas of information technology, including command & control; communications; and, space, information, and network operations. He served more than 17 years in joint duty assignments and was a 4-time Defense Department activity CIO. In his last position, he led DOD net-centric operations as Director of the Defense Information Systems Agency. In that role, he directed planning, engineering, and implementation of interoperable communications and intelligence systems serving the needs of the President, Secretary of Defense, Joint Chiefs of Staff, combatant commanders, and the military Services. Notably, he led efforts to restore communications to the Pentagon following the 9/11 terrorist attacks; upgraded Presidential communications; and led the successful expansion of the Department's Global Information Grid through a $1 billion transformational communications program.

Raduege also was appointed by the Secretary of Defense as the Commander of the Joint Task Force for Global Network Operations and Deputy Commander for Global Network Operations and Defense for the U.S. Strategic Command. In these roles, he was the first commander assigned responsibility for directing the operation and defense of DOD global information networks to assure timely and secure net-centric capabilities across the entire Department. He also served as the Manager of the National Communications System and led our Nation's efforts to prioritize the restoration of telecommunications throughout New York City and the Pentagon following the 9/11 terrorist attacks.

Prior to his last assignments, Raduege concurrently directed command and control systems for North American Aerospace Defense Command, U.S. Space Command, and Air Force Space Command. He also served as the Chief Information Officer for all three commands, was an architect for computer network defense and attack capabilities established within the DOD, and was the national spokesman for the Department during the successful "Year 2000" computer roll-over efforts.

General Raduege directed command and control communications and was the CIO for the U.S. Central Command for 3 years, including relocation efforts required after the terrorist bombing of Khobar Towers in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. Earlier, he served as the first commander of the Air Force C4 Agency and was the Joint Chiefs of Staff architect for all satellite communications supporting over 500,000 deployed military members during the Gulf War in 1991. He was inducted into the United States Air Force Cyberspace Hall-of-Fame in May 2011 and received the Lifetime Achievement Award in Cybersecurity from The America's Future Series in 2014.

General Raduege also has the following affiliations:

- Special Government Employee, Homeland Security Science & Technology Advisory Committee, Department of Homeland Security
- Special Advisor the President, University of Maryland University College (UMUC)
- United Services Organization (USO), World Board of Governors and IT Committee Chair
- Armed Forces Communications and Electronics Association (AFCEA) International, Board of Directors
- Cybersecurity Advisory Board, Ohio Attorney General's Office
- East West Institute(EWI), Board of Councilors
- U.S. Global Leadership Coalition (USGLC) National Security Advisory Council
- Air Force Association (AFA), Cyber Patriots Board of Advisors
- Capital University, Columbus, Ohio, Board of Trustees
- Center for Strategic and International Studies'(CSIS) Commission on Cyber Security for the 44th Presidency, co-chair (2008-2011)
- CSIS Senior Advisor, Task Force on Cybersecurity for the 45th Presidency (2016-2017)