

Announcement to NCOIC Members

*Message from Carl O'Berry, Chief Executive Officer, to all NCOIC Members and Advisors
March 25, 2015*

I want to share with you the news that I am retiring as chief executive officer of NCOIC, effective March 26. Tomorrow, we will make the official announcement that long-time board member Harry D. Raduege, Jr. of Deloitte has been elected as CEO and will lead the consortium into its second decade.

It has been a profound honor for me to work with such an outstanding group of individuals and organizations. Together, we set a vision for NCOIC and built an innovative consortium that offers considerable benefit to both industries and various government agencies. We focused on developing technical capability and have produced a range of tools and resources valued at approximately $100 million to aid in high-tech and effective interoperability solutions. We have been a catalyst for our customers — including the NATO Communication and Information Agency, Federal Aviation Administration, National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency and Royal Australian Air Force — in improving their net-centric environments and meeting their mission goals.

Now, it is important that NCOIC bring its expertise to a broader audience and expand the positive impact it can have on the global marketplace. Certainly, Harry Raduege is the right leader at the right time for the consortium. His business acumen, valuable contacts and collaborative approach will prove essential to NCOIC achieving its goals for addressing some of the most critical cyber issues facing the free world.

Thank you for the support you have given me since the earliest days of the consortium. I will miss working with each and all of you. I know you will succeed in continuing our work and commitment toward realizing true, on-demand interoperability among our growing list of customers around the world.

Please join me in congratulating Harry on his new leadership role.
